Maryland Big Tree Program Update:

- John provided the report, and Matt presented it at the meeting. John's report is provided below:

MBTP Report –Cecil –Certificates were mailed for all trees measured in March. Three remaining trees to be re-measured in '24. Two at Elk Neck State Park can wait until the fall. Suggest we move to "inactive" the sycamore at Northrop Grumman due to the difficulty in obtaining permission and the restricted access.

In Maryland, 17 trees were measured; all new trees:

Queen Anne's County – 13 – all at Wye Island Natural Resources Management Area

Baltimore County – 4 – Three at Hemlock Gorge Area of Prettyboy Watershed; 1 at St. Timothy's School

Wye Island NRMA is a tidal recess of the Chesapeake Bay between the Wye River and the Wye East River. Of Wye Island's 2,800 acres, 2,450 are managed by the Maryland Park Service for resource management, recreation and agriculture. A portion of the property is also in the Old Growth Forest Network, Dr. Joan Maloof, Director. Marc Lipnick made two measuring trips there in April—one with Wanda Dade and the second with Linda Barker—both Baltimore County volunteers.

1 new State Champion – a Cherrybark oak at 406 points

4 new QA County Champions – white oak, mockernut hickory, bitternut hickory, loblolly pine

Marc and Linda measured 3 new trees at Hemlock Gorge. As the name implies, the landscape is very steep and has the best growth of old hemlocks in Maryland. Although not independently documented by MD Wildlife and Heritage, Hemlock Gorge also appears to have the largest collection of yellow birch. Six of the 8 registered examples are found in the Gorge; including this new State-co-champion.

1 new State co-Champion at 200 points

1 new Baltimore County Champion mockernut hickory at 235 points

St. Timothy's School is a private girls' school in Stevenson, Baltimore County. It now owns the new Maryland State Champion Kwansan cherry at 202 points. A former employee of the school remembers when it was planted in the 1970's—making it about 50 years old.

- A NRCC Fellow has submitted a press release regarding NRCC to various media outlets in Cecil, in hopes of generating additional applications for NRCC 2024. That information has been shared to other news sources within the APG network.
- Gabrielle has obtained an Assistant Director for NRCC 2024 and plans to show them the ropes for running camp.
